

California LifeLine:

A Phone Service Discount Program

What is the California LifeLine Program?

The California Public Utilities Commission's (CPUC) California LifeLine Program helps eligible households lower the cost of their phone bills by providing a discount on home phone or cell phone services. Only one discount per household is allowed, either for home phone service or cell phone service. There are exceptions to the one discount per household rule for teletypewriter users and/or Deaf and Disabled Telecommunications Program (DDTP) participants.

Additionally, the federal government provides discounts with its federal Lifeline program and Enhanced Lifeline for Tribal Lands. The federal Lifeline program gives a discount of up to $9.25 per eligible household. Eligible households living on federally recognized Tribal Lands can receive a larger discount of up to $34.25. These federal discounts can be used for phone or broadband service.

The CPUC administers these programs for eligible households in California. Californians can combine the state and federal discounts to help lower the cost of phone bills.
